YALE SEXUAL MISCONDUCT POLICIES AND RELATED DEFINITIONS

Yale University is committed to maintaining and strengthening educational, working, and living environments founded on mutual respect in which students, faculty, and staff are connected by strong bonds of intellectual dependence and trust. Sexual misconduct is antithetical to the standards and ideals of our community. Therefore, Yale University prohibits all forms of sexual misconduct.

Yale aims to eradicate sexual misconduct through education, training, clear definitions and policies, and serious consequences for policy violations. The University Title IX Coordinator has responsibility for ensuring compliance with Yale's policies regarding sexual misconduct. The University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC) and the Title IX coordinators both address allegations of sexual misconduct.

These policies apply to all members of the Yale community as well as to conduct by third parties (i.e., individuals who are not students, faculty, or staff, including but not limited to guests and consultants) directed toward University students, faculty, or staff members. Conduct that occurs in the process of application for admission to a program or selection for employment is covered by these policies.

Many forms of sexual misconduct are prohibited by federal law, including Title IX of the education amendments of 1972, and by Connecticut statutes, and could result in criminal prosecution or civil liability.

Definition of Sexual Misconduct

Sexual misconduct incorporates a range of behaviors including sexual assault, sexual harassment, intimate partner violence, stalking, voyeurism, and any other conduct of a sexual nature that is nonconsensual, or has the purpose or effect of threatening, intimidating, or coercing a person.

Much sexual misconduct includes nonconsensual sexual contact, but this is not a necessary component. For example, threatening speech that is sufficiently severe or pervasive to constitute sexual harassment will constitute sexual misconduct. Making photographs, video, or other visual or auditory recordings of a sexual nature of another person without consent constitutes sexual misconduct, even if the activity documented was consensual. Similarly, sharing such recordings or other sexually harassing electronic communications without consent is a form of sexual misconduct. All members of our community are protected from sexual misconduct, and sexual misconduct is prohibited regardless of the sex or gender of the harasser.

Violations of Yale's Policy on Teacher-Student Consensual Relations and its Policy on Relationships between Staff Members are also forms of sexual misconduct.

Definition of Sexual Harassment

Sexual harassment consists of unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature on or off campus, when: (1) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a condition of an individual's employment or academic standing; or (2) submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment decisions or for academic evaluation, grades, or advancement; or (3) such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work or academic performance or creating an intimidating or hostile academic or work environment. Sexual harassment may be found in a single episode, as well as in persistent behavior. All members of our community are protected from sexual harassment, and sexual harassment is prohibited regardless of the sex or gender of the harasser.

Definition of Sexual Assault

Sexual assault is any kind of nonconsensual sexual contact, including rape, groping, or any other nonconsensual sexual touching.

Definition of Sexual Consent

Under Yale's policies, sexual activity requires affirmative consent, which is defined as positive, unambiguous, and voluntary agreement to engage in specific sexual activity throughout a sexual encounter. Consent cannot be inferred from the absence of a "no;" a clear "yes," verbal or otherwise, is necessary. Consent to some sexual acts does not constitute consent to others, nor does past consent to a given act constitute present or future consent. Consent must be ongoing throughout a sexual encounter and can be revoked at any time.

Consent cannot be obtained by threat, coercion, or force. Agreement under such circumstances does not constitute consent.

Consent cannot be obtained from someone who is asleep or otherwise mentally or physically incapacitated due to alcohol, drugs, or some other condition. A person is mentally or physically incapacitated when that person lacks the ability to make or act on considered decisions to engage in sexual activity. Engaging in sexual activity with a person whom you know—or reasonably should know—to be incapacitated constitutes sexual misconduct.

Guidance Regarding Sexual Consent

Consent can be accurately gauged only through direct communication about the decision to engage in sexual activity. Presumptions based upon contextual factors (such as clothing, alcohol consumption, or dancing) are unwarranted, and should not be considered as evidence for consent.

Although consent does not need to be verbal, verbal communication is the most reliable form of asking for and gauging consent. Talking with sexual partners about desires and limits may seem awkward, but it serves as the basis for positive sexual experiences shaped by mutual willingness and respect.

Definition of Intimate Partner Violence

Intimate partner violence (IPV) occurs when a current or former intimate partner uses or threatens physical or sexual violence. IPV also may take the form of a pattern of behavior that seeks to establish power and control by causing fear of physical or sexual violence. Stalking may also constitute IPV.

Definition of Stalking

Stalking is repeated or obsessive unwanted attention directed toward an individual or group that is likely to cause alarm, fear, or substantial emotional distress. Stalking may take many forms, including following, lying in wait, monitoring, and pursuing contact. Stalking may occur in person or through a medium of communication, such as letters, email, text messages, or phone calls. In some circumstances, two instances of such behavior may be sufficient to constitute stalking.

Yale Policy on Teacher-Student Consensual Relations

The integrity of the teacher-student relationship is the foundation of the University's educational mission. This relationship vests considerable trust in the teacher, who, in turn, bears authority and accountability as a mentor, educator, and evaluator. The unequal institutional power inherent in this relationship heightens the vulnerability of the student and the potential for coercion. The pedagogical relationship between teacher and student must be protected from influences or activities that can interfere with learning and personal development.

Whenever a teacher is or in the future might reasonably become responsible for teaching, advising, or directly supervising a student, a sexual relationship between them is inappropriate and must be avoided. In addition to creating the potential for coercion, any such relationship jeopardizes the integrity of the educational process by creating a conflict of interest and may impair the learning environment for other students. Finally, such situations may expose the University and the teacher to liability for violation of laws against sexual harassment and sex discrimination.

Therefore, teachers must avoid sexual relationships with students over whom they have or might reasonably expect to have direct pedagogical or supervisory responsibilities, regardless of whether the relationship is consensual. Conversely, teachers must not directly supervise any student with whom they have a sexual relationship. Undergraduate students are particularly vulnerable to the unequal institutional power inherent in the teacher-student relationship and the potential for coercion, because of their age and relative lack of maturity. Therefore, no teacher shall have a sexual or amorous relationship with any undergraduate student, regardless of whether the teacher currently exercises or expects to have any pedagogical or supervisory responsibilities over that student.

Teachers or students with questions about this policy are advised to consult with the University Title IX Coordinator, the Title IX coordinator of their school, the department chair, the appropriate dean, the Provost, or one of their designees. Students or other members of the community may lodge a formal or informal complaint regarding an alleged violation of this policy with the University Title IX Coordinator, with the Title IX coordinator of their school, or with the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct.

Violations of the above policies by a teacher will normally lead to disciplinary action. For purposes of this policy, “direct supervision” includes the following activities (on or off campus): course teaching, examining, grading, advising for a formal project such as a thesis or research, supervising required research or other academic activities, serving in such a capacity as Director of Undergraduate or Graduate Studies, and recommending in an institutional capacity for admissions, employment, fellowships or awards.

“Teachers” includes, but is not limited to, all ladder and non-ladder faculty of the University. It also includes graduate and professional students and postdoctoral fellows and associates only when they are serving as part-time acting instructors, teaching fellows or in similar institutional roles, with respect to the students they are currently teaching or supervising. “Students” refers to those enrolled in any and all educational and training programs of the University. Additionally, this policy applies to members of the Yale community who are not teachers as defined above, but have authority over or mentoring relationships with students, including athletic coaches, supervisors of student employees, advisors and directors of student organizations, Residential College Fellows, as well as others who advise, mentor, or evaluate students.

Yale Policy on Relationships Between Staff Members

Staff are expected to avoid romantic or sexual relationships with employees (including temporary employees) for whom they have or might reasonably expect to have supervisory or reporting responsibilities.

Under no circumstances can supervisors directly supervise or evaluate any employee with whom they have a romantic or sexual relationship. If such a relationship exists or develops, the supervisor and employee must promptly disclose it to the Department Head or the Human Resources Generalist. Arrangements, which may include reassignment or relocation, will be made to address any issue of conflict of interest. Any decision affecting any aspect of employment (for example, transfer, promotion, salary, termination) must be made by disinterested and qualified supervisory personnel.

Violations of this policy will normally lead to disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Individuals with questions about this policy or staff concerned about a romantic or sexual relationship in violation of this policy are encouraged to speak with their supervisor, Human Resources Generalist, or any Title IX coordinator.

See HR 600 Workplace Practices Policies at www.your.yale.edu.

Yale Policy on Retaliation

Yale policy strictly forbids retaliation against individuals who report sexual misconduct, file complaints of sexual misconduct, cooperate in the investigation of sexual misconduct, or hear formal or informal complaints of sexual misconduct. This prohibition against retaliation protects complainants, respondents, witnesses, or other persons who have provided or may provide information to a Title IX coordinator or the University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC).

If you believe you have experienced retaliation, you should consult with a Title IX coordinator or the Secretary of the UWC.

Title IX Coordinators

provost.yale.edu/title-ix

See the inside back cover of this guide for additional contact information.

Title IX<sup>1</sup> coordinators are senior administrators and faculty members throughout the University who:

- Meet with students, faculty, and staff in order to answer questions related to issues of discrimination on the basis of sex or gender or sexual misconduct
- Inform Yale community members about all of their options for resolving complaints
- Coordinate resources, accommodations, remedies, and interim measures
- Investigate complaints to the degree possible and consistent with the complainant's wishes
- Ensure that the University responds effectively to each complaint
- Track and monitor incidents, identify patterns and systemic issues, and take steps to address them

The University Title IX Coordinator, Stephanie Spangler, has campus-wide responsibility for all policies, processes, and programs that address and prevent discrimination on the basis of sex or gender, including sexual misconduct. In addition to Dr. Spangler, Assistant Provost Jason Killheffer serves as the Senior Deputy Title IX Coordinator and helps to oversee the University's Title IX programs. The Director of the Office for Equal Opportunity Programs, Valarie Stanley, serves as the Senior Deputy Title IX Coordinator for faculty and staff. Yale College, the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, and each of the professional schools have designated deputy Title IX coordinators. These coordinators report to Dr. Spangler.

You may contact any coordinator at any time by email or phone. Some community members prefer to contact the Title IX coordinator that works directly with their school; others prefer to contact a coordinator from another area of campus. All coordinators are available to the entire Yale community. You can find their contact information on page 29 of this booklet or online at provost.yale.edu/title-ix/coordinators.

University-Wide Committee (UWC)

203.432.4449 (9 AM–5 PM weekdays)

uwc.yale.edu

The University-Wide Committee on Sexual Misconduct (UWC) is an internal disciplinary board available to students, faculty, and staff across the university for complaints of sexual misconduct, as described in the committee's procedures. The UWC is an accessible, representative, and trained body established to fairly and expeditiously address formal complaints of sexual misconduct. UWC members can answer inquiries about procedures and the University definition of sexual misconduct. In cases where formal resolution is sought, investigations are conducted by professional, impartial fact finders.

Yale's prevention efforts?
Please visit smr.yale.edu/get-involved

Preventing sexual misconduct is a community-wide effort. Everyone can play a role in making our campus safer and more respectful.

General Strategies

- Trust your instincts. If there are elements of an environment that feel uncomfortable, trust your instincts and seek help. Call on friends, colleagues, and other allies, including SHARE, Title IX coordinators, supervisors, deans, and professors, to support you.
- Be a role model. A community free from sexual misconduct requires effort from all of us. Engage respectfully with your peers and colleagues, and think carefully about how words or actions that may seem insignificant to you could hurt someone else. Set high standards for your community and model the behavior you expect.
- Look out for people around you. Simply stepping in to act when you see a troubling situation can make a big difference. If you see something that causes you concern—even if you're not sure—check in and seek help, if necessary. SHARE, Title IX coordinators, and/or the Yale Police can always guide you on how to help.

- Respond to even minor issues. Serious situations can often be averted by responding at the first sign of trouble. SHARE, Title IX coordinators, and the Yale Police are always available to discuss such incidents. If you are in a position of authority, you are responsible for establishing and maintaining a respectful environment. If you are a supervisor, you must report any sexual misconduct that comes to your attention to a Title IX coordinator.
- Communicate with your sexual and romantic partners. Open discussion of desires and limits is a critical part of building a positive sexual culture. Take any signs of reluctance or refusal, including nonverbal signs, very seriously. If the signs are ambiguous, be sure to stop, and then check in or ask questions. In general, it's easy to tell if someone is enthusiastic about an encounter or not.
- Take sexual pressure seriously. Many sexual assaults begin with low-level sexual pressure. Though sexual pressure and disregard don't always lead to assault, you deserve to have your boundaries respected, not pushed.
- Be alert to patterns, not just isolated actions. Sometimes, sexual misconduct can take the form of patterns of behaviors that might not be worrying in isolation, but that together constitute a problem. Take repeated disrespect, intimidation, and threats seriously, even if they seem small alone. Stalking can sometimes seem merely annoying or even flattering, but its intrusive nature must be taken seriously, whether it is online or in person. In cases of intimate partner violence (IPV), be on the lookout for patterns of isolation, control, and intimidation.

- Be safe. In an emergency, you should always call 911. If you need to make a longer-term plan for your safety, SHARE, Title IX coordinators, and the Yale Police can help.

Bystander Intervention

Sexual violence is often enabled by cultural patterns of disrespect and pressure—patterns that let aggression pass unchecked. However, you can interrupt these patterns. Interventions don't have to be large or dramatic. Small interventions—asking a friend to leave a party with you, redirecting a conversation with a joke, or acting as a third wheel—are very effective.

Steps to Action:

- Pay attention: be alert to things that make you uncomfortable. In particular, look out for signs of sexual pressure, unwanted attention, disrespect, extreme drunkenness, or signs of fear and confusion. Keep an eye on anything worrying; don't ignore "little" things.

- Decide: should someone intervene? Does the situation seem to be making someone uncomfortable? Does someone need help? If you can, check in with whomever you're aiming to help—but if you can't, trust your instincts.
- Make a plan: fit your intervention to the situation. Determine who is in the best position to act. You can call on friends, allies, hosts, and authority figures, or you can do something yourself. When's the best moment? Now? Later? Be creative and strategic.
- Make it happen: follow your plan, and be ready to get help if you need it. Look for allies, and be alert for others trying to help. Start with the smallest possible intervention. Act even if you feel awkward or nervous.
- Disrupt the situation: Intrude. Make a joke. Change the topic. Spill something. Be a third wheel.
- Name the problem: Acknowledging that there are troubling dynamics at play can go a long way.
- Check in again later: Some interventions are one-off occurrences; others may be ongoing. Consider checking in with the person you helped to see how they are doing.
- Above all — be safe and remember that small interventions can be the most effective. Act early, act often, but if you think you are in danger, step back and get help.

Techniques to Try:

- De-escalate. Change the topic. Don't laugh at inappropriate jokes. Shift the focus away from the problem.
- Offer help. Signal your concern and willingness to act. It's okay if you are turned down at first or altogether: simply offering to help can change the dynamics.
- Slow things down: If a situation seems troubling, give people time to extricate themselves, if that's what they want.

Communication and Consent Educators (CCEs)

Yale College
yale.edu/cce
cce@yale.edu

The CCEs are a diverse group of undergraduates who work together to foster a more positive sexual and social climate on the Yale College campus. The CCEs aim to end sexual violence by transforming our community into one where respect, mutuality, and mindfulness are the norms. A safe campus is critically important, but the CCEs aim higher: for Yale to be a place where everyone can thrive.

Through workshops, trainings, and conversations, the CCEs help students identify troubled dynamics, develop skills for effective interventions, and work on strategies for avoiding problems altogether. CCE teams often collaborate with other student groups to change the campus environment, reimaging traditional events and practices to maximize opportunities for our ideals to flourish.

CCEs run workshops for all freshmen and sophomores on consent and bystander intervention. Most of their work, though, takes place within their own communities and residential colleges. The CCEs are always happy to collaborate with student groups, so get in touch with your college CCEs if you have ideas.

Understanding Confidentiality

Privacy concerns are often at the forefront when someone has experienced sexual misconduct. It is useful to know the confidentiality that individuals can expect from each of the University resources. University officials are trained in the importance of confidentiality and the protocols for maintaining that confidentiality.

Information you share with SHARE counselors, healthcare providers, and chaplains

When you consult them in their professional capacities, SHARE counselors, healthcare providers (including mental health practitioners), and chaplains will not reveal any information you share without your explicit permission except in rare circumstances where your or another person's health and safety is at imminent risk.

Information you share with the Title IX coordinators

Title IX coordinators will not share identifying information with anyone beyond the Title IX office without your permission, except in the rare event of an immediate or ongoing threat to your safety or community safety. In cases of sexual assault or other criminal conduct, Title IX coordinators will share non-identifying details about the incident with the Yale Police Department for statistical purposes (as required by the federal Clery Act), and will advise you about the resources and assistance that the police can provide.

Title IX coordinators will work with you to address your immediate concerns, connect you with appropriate resources, review the complaint options (formal, informal, criminal) available for further action, and help facilitate those actions at your request. Many actions and accommodations can be taken or made while protecting your identity. Some accommodations may require the Title IX coordinator to work with other University personnel (e.g., deans, HR, housing staff), but they will only be pursued with your permission.

You may ask that a complaint be pursued without revealing your name or other identifying details. Your request will be accommodated to the extent possible, but an anonymous complaint on its own cannot be the basis for disciplinary action. In situations where a confidentiality request limits an investigation or prevents the University from taking direct disciplinary action, the University will take other reasonable steps to minimize the effects of the reported misconduct and to prevent its recurrence. You may also ask that a complaint not be pursued. However, in the rare event of an immediate or ongoing threat, the University may need to take additional action to protect your safety and the safety of others.

Information you share with the University-Wide Committee (UWC)

UWC members observe strict confidentiality with respect to all information they receive about a case.

Information you share with the Yale Police Department (YPD)

The Yale Police Department (YPD) offers confidential consultations regarding possible criminal investigation. Ordinarily, the decision about whether or not to press criminal charges is up to you. In cases of sexual misconduct, the YPD will share information with the Title IX office, and will advise you about the resources and assistance the University can provide.

“Messages from the Chief”

Under the federal Clery Act, the University is responsible for issuing “timely warnings,” also known as “Messages from the Chief,” in response to some reports. Only specific crimes require a timely warning; the crime must have occurred within the officially-designated campus area; and there must be a serious or ongoing threat to the community. If you report an incident that meets these criteria, a message will be sent out from the Chief of Police. The warning message will contain a brief description of the crime, and may indicate the location where the incident occurred. It will not include any information that would identify you or other individuals involved.

Information you share with individuals with reporting responsibilities

Certain individuals on campus have a responsibility to report allegations of sexual misconduct to a Title IX coordinator. These individuals include all faculty, certain administrators, UWC members, and students in official roles such as Communication and Consent Educators (CCEs), Peer Liaisons, and First-Year Counselors. When a Title IX coordinator receives information about an incident of sexual misconduct, they may reach out to you to assess the situation and to offer you options and accommodations.

Some individuals, known as Campus Security Authorities (CSAs) under the federal Clery Act, also have a responsibility to report allegations of sexual misconduct to the Yale Police Department without including identifying details. A CSA is defined by law as a member of the campus police/public safety and security, any individual who has responsibility for campus security or an individual who has significant responsibility for student and campus activities.

Publications

The University issues regular publications—such as the semi-annual Report of Complaints of Sexual Misconduct and the annual Campus Safety Report—to inform the community and the public in general about complaints of sexual misconduct brought to the University's attention. These reports are written with great care to preserve the privacy of the individuals involved by omitting names and providing only minimal descriptions or statistical summaries.

Know Your Options

Sexual assault, harassment, and other forms of sexual misconduct can have profound impacts on personal, professional, and academic life. If you have experienced sexual misconduct of any kind, the University urges you to take action to seek the help and support that you need, which may include making a report and pursuing disciplinary and criminal sanctions.

Individual experiences of sexual misconduct vary widely, as do people's needs. At Yale, you have choices about what to do and when – and people who can explain the options, answer your questions, and support you along the way.

Steps you should consider taking:

- Get support. You should not have to cope with this experience alone. There are many places to turn, but SHARE offers particular expertise. The SHARE staff can provide information and advocacy as well as support, all with strict confidentiality. SHARE can also help you take any of the steps below. You may contact SHARE 24/7 at (203) 432-2000.
- Seek medical treatment. If you have experienced physical or sexual violence, it's important to get care as soon as possible. Even if you feel okay, you may be injured or at risk of contracting a sexually transmitted infection or becoming pregnant. If you were sexually assaulted within the past 72 hours, you should strongly consider having physical forensic evidence collected at the time of your medical examination. SHARE will coordinate with the hospital emergency room and the police to make arrangements and guide you through this process.

- Collect and preserve evidence. Prompt collection of physical forensic evidence is particularly important, as discussed above. Other pieces of evidence are also important to save. Voicemail, emails, and text messages, for example, can be very powerful in building a strong case. Even if you don't initially plan to pursue a disciplinary or criminal complaint, it is good to keep those options open by retaining evidence. SHARE can help you to work with the Title IX coordinators and the police to identify evidence and understand collection processes.
- Report the incident. If you have experienced (or learned about) sexual misconduct involving a member of the Yale community, you may report to any Title IX coordinator, the UWC, or the Yale Police. (See the Resources section for contact information.) By reporting the incident, you alert the University and enable administrators to respond appropriately both to your case and to broader patterns of concerning behavior. Reporting also allows you to discuss your options and gives you immediate access to various accommodations.

Making a report does not ordinarily commit you to pursuing a complaint; in rare situations where there is an immediate or ongoing threat to individual or community safety, a Title IX coordinator may take independent action.

- Pursue a complaint. Individuals come to the complaint process with different needs and goals, so it is important that there is a range of options for pursuing a complaint. Title IX coordinators, the UWC, and the YPD work hard, along with SHARE, to streamline and coordinate complaint processes, so it does not matter where you begin. The options are not mutually exclusive; you can pursue any or all of them as you wish. You will always be part of the decision-making process and the choices regarding whether or how to proceed are generally up to you (except in the rare event of an immediate or ongoing threat to your safety or the safety of the community).

See pages 18-19 for more details on reporting and complaint processes. These details are also available at smryale.edu.

- Continue to get support. Support can come in many forms, be it from friends, family, or professionals. You may reach out at any time to one of Yale's mental health counselors, SHARE counselors, chaplains, or Title IX coordinators.

Seeking Accommodations, Remedies, and Protective Measures

If you have experienced sexual misconduct, there are steps the University can take to help minimize the impact of the incident, decrease the chance of recurrence, and provide a safe educational and work environment. Many steps can be taken regardless of whether or not you chose to pursue a complaint. Usually, a Title IX coordinator will organize accommodations, remedies, and protective measures; SHARE, the YPD, and Human Resources are often involved too. As always, your privacy will be safeguarded as these arrangements are made. The steps taken will be determined on a case-by-case basis, responding to your needs, the nature of the incident, and other contextual factors, including the need to ensure individual and community safety. Measures can include steps such as no contact orders, residential reassignments, changes to employment or academic assignments, and temporary suspensions.

Pursuing a Complaint

Complaints may be pursued with the Title IX coordinators, the University-Wide Committee, and the Yale Police—all of whom receive annual and ongoing training on relevant laws, regulations, and disciplinary codes; the dynamics and patterns of sexual misconduct; the importance of confidentiality, fair process, and impartiality; safety considerations when determining interim measures; and appropriate disciplinary and criminal sanctions. These officials coordinate closely to streamline complaint processes. In the absence of an immediate or ongoing threat to individual or community safety, you may decide which among the available options you wish to pursue. These options are not mutually exclusive.

Whichever path(s) you choose, you may have an advisor present at every stage. SHARE staff members are commonly chosen as advisors, but you may select whomever you wish to fill this role. Respondents may also have an advisor of their choice. All proceedings are designed to be fair, prompt, and impartial.

- Title IX Coordinators

Title IX coordinators are employees to whom students, faculty, and staff may go when they have questions or would like to make a report concerning issues of sexual misconduct and gender-based discrimination. Title IX coordinators are available for community members to bring their concerns and questions—no matter how big or small—about a specific incident or the campus sexual climate in general.

When you contact a Title IX coordinator you can choose what information you would like to share with the coordinator. Based on the information shared, you and the coordinator can work to address immediate concerns, especially safety, emotional well-being, and professional and academic requirements. (See “Seeking Accommodations, Remedies, and Protective Measures on page 18 for more information.) Title IX coordinators can also assist in resolving complaints. Title IX coordinators do not conduct formal hearings but may investigate complaints and work with the complainant and the respondent to achieve resolution of a complaint. Title IX coordinators may also help connect the complainant or the respondent, when requested, to the SHARE Center, the University-Wide Committee, or the Yale Police.

You can contact any coordinator at any time by email or phone. You can find contact information for all of the University's Title IX coordinators on page 29 of this booklet or online at provost.yale.edu/title-ix/coordinators.

- University-Wide Committee

As the disciplinary board for addressing formal complaints of sexual misconduct, the University-Wide Committee uses an impartial fact-finder to gather evidence and then holds a hearing to determine whether a violation of University policy has occurred, based on the “preponderance of the evidence” standard (i.e., if it is more likely than not that such a violation occurred). Advisers may accompany the complainant and respondent for support at every stage.

Normally, the formal complaint process takes about 60 days. The chair may extend the process if necessary due to illness, holidays, the absence of witnesses from campus, the complexity of the case, or competing demands on UWC members or decision makers. UWC sanctions can include mandated training, reprimand, probation, suspension, and termination/expulsion.

The full UWC procedures are available online at uwc.yale.edu. There is also a set of videos made by undergraduates that offer an accessible overview for anyone in the community; these are available at yale.edu/ccce.

- Yale Police

The Yale Police Department has sworn police officers with full powers of law enforcement who receive advanced training in crimes of interpersonal violence. They can assist in determining whether the conduct experienced was criminal in nature, and launch an investigation accordingly. If an incident occurs outside the YPD's jurisdiction, the YPD can assist in contacting the appropriate alternative law enforcement agency. Criminal proceedings use “beyond a reasonable doubt” as the standard of evidence.

Concerns about Disciplinary Consequences for Alcohol or Drug Use

The University recognizes that students who have been using alcohol and/or drugs may be hesitant to report incidents of sexual misconduct due to the fear of potential consequences for their own conduct. Therefore, any student who reports in good faith that they witnessed or were the victim of sexual misconduct will not face disciplinary charges for being under the influence of alcohol or prohibited substances at the time of the incident.

The following summary of federal and state laws related to sexual misconduct is provided for reference only. For the Yale policies and definitions, please see the Yale Sexual Misconduct Policies and Definitions section in this guide. For additional information on Yale's policies and resources, see the Sexual Misconduct Response website at smryale.edu.

Sexual Harassment

Federal Definition

29 C.F.R §1604.11. (a) Harassment on the basis of sex is a violation of section 703 of title VII. Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature constitute sexual harassment when (1) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual's employment, (2) submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used as the basis for employment decisions affecting such individual, or (3) such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile, or offensive working environment.

(b) In determining whether alleged conduct constitutes sexual harassment, the Commission will look at the record as a whole and at the totality of the circumstances, such as the nature of the sexual advances and the context in which the alleged incidents occurred. The determination of the legality of a particular action will be made from the facts, on a case by case basis.

(c) [Reserved]

(d) With respect to conduct between fellow employees, an employer is responsible for acts of sexual harassment in the workplace where the employer (or its agents or supervisory employees) knows or should have known of the conduct, unless it can show that it took immediate and appropriate corrective action.

(e) An employer may also be responsible for the acts of non-employees, with respect to sexual harassment of employees in the workplace, where the employer (or its agents or supervisory employees) knows or should have known of the conduct and fails to take immediate and appropriate corrective action. In reviewing these cases the Commission will consider the extent of the employer's control and any other legal responsibility which the employer may have with respect to the conduct of such non-employees.

(f) Prevention is the best tool for the elimination of sexual harassment. An employer should take all steps necessary to prevent sexual harassment from occurring, such as affirmatively raising the subject, expressing strong disapproval, developing appropriate sanctions, informing employees of their right to raise and how to raise the issue of harassment under title VII, and developing methods to sensitize all concerned.

(g) Other related practices: Where employment opportunities or benefits are granted because of an individual's submission to the employer's sexual advances or requests for sexual favors, the employer may be held liable for unlawful sex discrimination against other persons who were qualified for but denied that employment opportunity or benefit.

Connecticut Definition

C.G.S. Sec. 46a-6o. Discriminatory employment practices prohibited. (a) It shall be a discriminatory practice in violation of this section:

(8) For an employer, by the employer or the employer’s agent, for an employment agency, by itself or its agent, or for any labor organization, by itself or its agent, to harass any employee, person seeking employment or member on the basis of sex or gender identity or expression. “Sexual harassment” shall, for the purposes of this section, be defined as any unwelcome sexual advances or requests for sexual favors or any conduct of a sexual nature when (A) submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term or condition of an individual’s employment, (B) submission to or rejection of such conduct by an individual is used as the basis for employment decisions affecting such individual, or (C) such conduct has the purpose or effect of substantially interfering with an individual’s work performance or creating an intimidating, hostile or offensive working environment.

receiving grant monies, or by any other person against an adult or youth victim who is protected from that person’s acts under the domestic or family violence laws of the jurisdiction.

(10) The term “dating violence” means violence committed by a person—

(A) who is or has been in a social relationship of a romantic or intimate nature with the victim; and

(B) where the existence of such a relationship shall be determined based on a consideration of the following factors:

- (i) The length of the relationship.

- (iii) The frequency of interaction between the persons involved in the relationship.

Connecticut Definition

C.G.S. Sec. 10a-55m. “Intimate partner violence” means any physical or sexual harm against an individual by a current or former spouse of or person in a dating relationship with such individual that results from any action by such spouse or such person that may be classified as a sexual assault under section 53a-70, 53a-70a, 53a-70b, 53a-71, 53a-72a, 53a-72b or 53a-73a, stalking under section 53a-181c, 53a-181d or 53a-181e, or family violence as designated under section 46b-38h.

C.G.S. Sec. 53a-181d. Stalking in the second degree: Class A misdemeanor. (b) A person is guilty of stalking in the second degree when:

(1) Such person knowingly engages in a course of conduct directed at a specific person that would cause a reasonable person to fear for such person’s physical safety or the physical safety of a third person; or

(2) Such person intentionally, and for no legitimate purpose, engages in a course of conduct directed at a specific person that would cause a reasonable person to fear that such person’s employment, business or career is threatened, where (A) such conduct consists of the actor telephoning to, appearing at or initiating communication or contact at such other person’s place of employment or business, provided the actor was previously and clearly informed to cease such conduct, and (B) such conduct does not consist of constitutionally protected activity.

C.G.S. Sec. 53a-181e. Stalking in the third degree: Class B misdemeanor. (a) A person is guilty of stalking in the third degree when he recklessly causes another person to reasonably fear for his physical safety by wilfully and repeatedly following or lying in wait for such other person.
